Wycliffe Bible Translators

Supported by Grace Church since 2001

After meeting at Wheaton College and marrying in 1997, Neil and Joyce were accepted by Wycliffe Bible Translators as Ethnomusicology workers in 2000. In 2002, they moved to Papua New Guinea to begin their first field term. Neil and Joyce spent their first term working in the Alamlak language group in the Sepik Region.

Now Neil is an Ethnomusicology Consultant, based in Ukarumpa, working throughout PNG and the Pacific Region. He holds Bible-based music workshops, works with church leaders, writes and delivers academic papers, and teaches at missionary training schools, all in the interest of encouraging meaningful worship and songwriting in the heart language and heart music of every people group.

Joyce teaches high school English at Ukarumpa Int'l School, an SIL-run school for MKs, and cares for their three boys. All of this, "with the added spice of adventurous travel over terrain like nowhere else on earth."
